Russell High Dividend Australian Shares ETF

Exchange Traded Funds.
Higher dividends redefined.

Introducing RDV

Providing you access to income and growth

The Russell High Dividend Australian Shares ETF (RDV) provides investors with an easy way to access a diversified blue chip Australian shares portfolio that aims to deliver higher dividends.

We have used our expertise in portfolio construction and factor exposures to construct an exchange traded fund (ETF) which offers potential for higher dividends, franking credits and capital growth. This is the first of its kind in Australia and is another example of our expertise in innovative investment solutions.

How does it work?

The returns of the Russell High Dividend Australian Shares ETF are designed to track the performance of the Russell Australia High Dividend Index by investing in Australian shares and trusts listed on the Australian Securities Exchange (ASX).

The Russell High Dividend Australian Shares ETF is structured as a single security and trades under the ASX code RDV, just like a share.

Russell Investments ETFs – the intersection of our global expertise

By combining three of our core areas of expertise, we are in a unique position to create innovative ETFs to meet specific investor needs. This makes us the logical choice for your ETF investment.

Manager research and asset allocation

With over 40 years in global consulting experience and award-winning manager research capabilities, we have developed deep insights into how to evaluate and construct investment portfolios, including ETFs.

A leader in factor exposures

Factors are simply specific, single attributes of investable securities, such as the security's size, quality, or valuation. Understanding and actively managing these factors can both drive returns and mitigate risk within a portfolio. Multiple factors at varying weights are used to capture the relative importance of high forecasted dividends, consistency of dividends and the trajectory of dividend growth (both expected future growth and historical).

Excellence in portfolio implementation

Even the most innovative investment ideas can fail to meet expectations if they are implemented poorly. That's why it's critical to choose an investment manager like Russell Investments who has extensive global experience in successfully implementing investment strategies.

How is RDV different?

Many ETFs simply track a broad market or a pre-existing index.

But RDV is different.

It was especially designed to meet investor needs of income and capital growth.

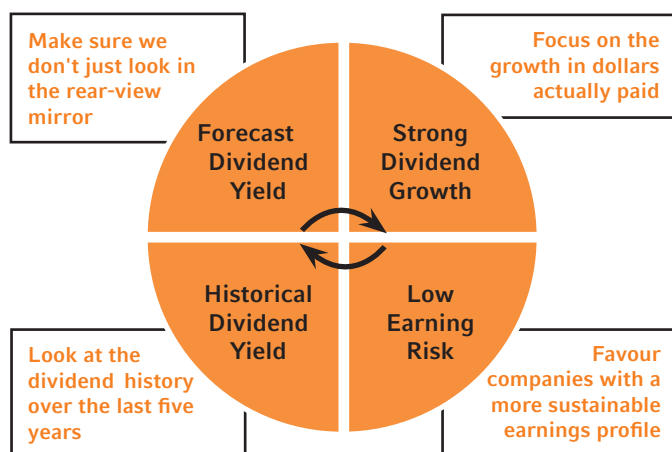

RDV gives you exposure to a unique investment solution not available anywhere else.

What is the Russell Australia High Dividend Index?

The Russell Australia High Dividend Index is an index specifically designed to address Australian investors' needs of generating income and attaining capital growth. It is an equity index that provides an investable portfolio of around 50 large, blue chip Australian companies and has a particular emphasis on dividends.

Expertise and capability in factor exposures

The Russell Australia High Dividend Index construction methodology targets high dividends, and is also designed to identify better quality dividends. To capture the quality of the underlying dividends the methodology focuses on penalising those companies that pay sporadic dividends and also those companies whose dividends have been falling or are perceived as likely to fall in the future.

The Russell Australia High Dividend Index is reconstituted semiannually using data as of the last business day in February and August.

RDV offers many benefits

- Exposure to a portfolio that aims to deliver higher dividends
- Access to franking credits from high quality blue chip Australian companies
- A convenient and efficient way to gain instant diversification to a portfolio of securities
- Tax concessions on distributions received and, in most cases, additional tax concessions when you sell out of the ETF
- The flexibility to buy and sell your investment on the ASX at any time during market hours
- Full daily transparency of the underlying holdings
- Lower cost than investing in an actively managed fund.

Diversification through a single transaction

ETFs are listed managed funds which trade on the ASX. They offer the liquidity benefits of ASX listed securities and the diversification benefits of traditional managed funds—all in a single transaction.

The underlying assets in an ETF unit are a diversified portfolio of securities which typically track an index. Investors can receive capital growth as the underlying portfolio changes in value as well as income through dividends.

ETFs are one of the fastest growing investment instruments in the world because they offer investors a cost effective and easy way to gain exposure to a broad range of domestic and international asset classes.
