Fund commentary

The Fund's traditional fixed income portfolio contributed positively to performance, with the Russell Investments International Bond Fund – $A Hedged and the Russell Investments Australian Bond Fund outperforming their respective benchmarks. Both funds benefited from their overweight to credit as spreads tightened throughout the period. In terms of our extended fixed income exposure, global high-yield debt and the Russell Investments Australian Floating Rate Fund delivered positive absolute returns in January. Metrics Credit also performed well, with Australian loans continuing to generate income-like returns. Within our global equity portfolio, the Russell Investments Tax Effective Global Shares Fund and the Russell Investments Global Opportunities Fund – $A Hedged recorded strong absolute and excess returns for the month; the two funds benefiting from strong stock selection in the US and emerging markets. The Russell Investments Multi-Asset Factor Exposure Fund also performed well in January. In terms of domestic equities, the Russell Investments Australian Shares Core Fund outperformed its benchmark, benefiting from strong stock selection amongst property trusts. In contrast, the Russell Investments Australian Opportunities Fund (RAOF) underperformed its benchmark in January; though it did record positive absolute returns for the month. RAOF's underperformance was driven in part by poor stock selection within the materials space. The Russell Investments Australian Factor Exposure Fund performed in line with its benchmark over the period. Meanwhile, a stronger Australian dollar impacted the returns of the Fund's assets denominated in foreign currency.

² The performance data shown does not take into account fees, charges and taxes, and is not a reliable indicator of the net return to you as an investor.

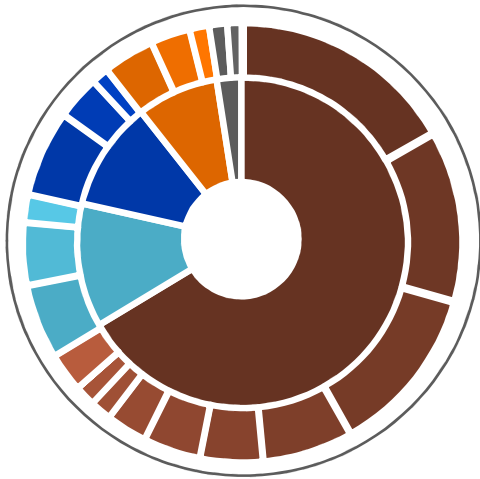

³ Allocations may not equal 100% due to rounding.

[†] As a percentage of net assets. Includes management fee, indirect costs and expense recoveries. Reflects RIM's reasonable estimates of the typical fees for the current financial year. All costs reflect the actual amount incurred for previous financial year and may include RIM's reasonable estimates where information was not available or where RIM was unable to determine the exact amount. Refer to the PDS for further information.

[‡] As a percentage of net assets. RIM does not charge a performance fee at the Fund level, however underlying funds and managers may charge a performance fee. This estimated fee is based on the average of actual performance fees incurred over the past 5 financial years. Refer to PDS for further information.
