Fund Update

The Russell Investments Australian Shares Fund outperformed the benchmark in the March quarter.

Contributing to the Fund's outperformance was strong stock selection within the financials space; notably overweights to QBE Insurance, Suncorp Group and Netwealth. All three stocks posted strong gains for the quarter. Stock selection amongst industrials also added value over the period. This included overweights to plumbing supplies group Reece Ltd., Seven Group Holdings and infrastructure company Ventia Services Group. A material overweight to the strong-performing information technology sector added further value, with tech stocks tracking their global counterparts higher amid some stellar earnings results from the likes of chip maker NVIDIA and Meta Platforms (formerly Facebook). Stock selection amongst property trusts and materials also contributed positively to performance, including an overweight to industrial property giant Goodman Group and underweights to iron ore majors Fortescue and BHP Group. In contrast, stock selection within the consumer discretionary space detracted from overall performance; notably an underweight to Wesfarmers, which jumped almost 23% on the back of better-than-expected earnings. Wesfarmers owns the Kmart, Bunnings Warehouse and Officeworks brands. Stock selection within communication services also weighed on returns, albeit modestly. This included an underweight to classifieds company Car Group. Partly offsetting this was our underweight to the sector, which underperformed the broader market over the period. Other key holdings to impact performance were underweights to Commonwealth Bank of Australia, Scentre Group and Mineral Resources.
