Why a client engagement roadmap may enhance your service model?

Despite your best efforts, clients sometimes struggle to remember the value that you provide as their adviser. A solution to this challenge is to build your service model around the client engagement roadmap. The client engagement roadmap positions you as the coordinator of your client's multi-faceted affairs and will help hold both you and the client accountable for the appropriate actions. The client engagement roadmap may help you deliver maximum value to your clients, get credit for it and elevate the overall experience of working with you.

Effective implementation can:

- Help you maintain focus on each client and their unique goals and circumstances.
- Visibly illustrate the value you provide to clients.
- Provide structure for ongoing communication with your clients.
- Strengthen client reviews with a thorough examination of their total financial picture.
- Spur ongoing discussions about client financial goals and set expectations about ongoing interaction between you and your clients.
- Pinpoint planning areas that may require additional resources such as estate and tax planning.

Making the most of the client engagement roadmap:

- The road map should be used across your client base as most clients are interested in a tailored client experience.
- Make the roadmap persona. Use the names of the people and causes that are important to them (e.g. the names of the client's parents and children, the names of the sports teams/charities they support, and significant life events).
- Prioritise what matters most. Focus the roadmap on the client's priorities alongside the areas your advice can add value.

Best practices:

By outlining a clear service experience and following through each quarter you will have the opportunity to build and strengthen your brand. The opposite is true as well. You can just as easily erode your brand by creating a client engagement roadmap and not following through with what you say you will do. If you elect to utilise the client engagement roadmap it is vital that you follow through and execute on what you promise.

Value of an Adviser insight

Clients increasingly value confidence, reassurance and feeling in control of their finances. Consider including at least one conversation each year focused purely on these outcomes rather than just investment performance.
