'This performance is net of management fees for both the Managed Portfolio and the underlying managers' fees and costs. It does not take into account any thirid party platform fees charged to individual investors or transaction costs (including buy/sell spreads and brokerage fees). It assumes income is reinvested without any tax deduction. It is for RIML's preferred model portfolio of holdings. A holding in the preferred model portfolio may be restricted or replaced with another similar asset in the Managed Portfolio on different platforms if the preferred holding is not available. Different platforms may also charge different management fees for the Managed Portfolio Portfolio. This can result in variances in performance of the Managed Portfolio between platforms. An individual investor's performance will differ, according to the investor's actual exposures to Managed Portfolio holdings and other factors (including transaction timing, transaction costs, actual underlying manager fees and costs and whether income is paid in cash). Platforms will have their own methodology for calculating performance, at both a platform level and an individual investor level. Past performance is not a reliable indicator of future performance.

Portfolio objective

The portfolio is a dynamic cost-effective multi-asset portfolio with approximately 98% growth assets and 2% defensive assets. The focus for this portfolio is to provide long-term returns and to manage investment risks over time.

Main market highlights

Global share markets made only modest gains in the June quarter. Much of the gains continued to be driven by central bank activity. In the US, the Federal Reserve (Fed) left its benchmark fed funds rate on hold at a target range of between 5.25% and 5.50% throughout the period. Speaking after the Bank's June gathering, Chairman Jerome Powell said that while inflation has eased considerably from its peak, it nonetheless remains too high, and that policymakers do not yet have the confidence to begin lowering interest rates. However, he did reaffirm his belief that current monetary policy is sufficiently restrictive to achieve the Bank's inflation goal. Encouragingly, the latest inflation figures showed an easing in consumer prices between April and May. At the time of writing, the market was fully priced for a first Fed rate cut in November. Elsewhere, the European Central Bank cut interest rates in June; the Bank lowering its main refinancing rate by 0.25% (to 4.25%). However, the Bank gave no indication of the timing of its next move. Meantime, both the Bank of England and the Bank of Japan left their respective benchmark policy rates unchanged over the period. Australian shares underperformed their global counterparts; the local market falling on expectations domestic interest rates will remain higher for longer amid stubbornly high inflation.

Both global and domestic bonds were weaker for the quarter, albeit modestly.

Long-term investing: Positioning for 5 years and beyond

The portfolio has a long-term asset allocation of 98% to return generating assets. Growth asset valuations have increased year to date but are below pre-pandemic levels. Long-term, forward-looking return expectations for US shares and high-yield debt have moderated. The economic outlook creates uncertainty in the near term, however in the long term, growth assets are still preferred due to superior returns relative to defensive assets.

Strategically, the portfolio has positions in cheaper and higher momentum securities as per our researched beliefs.

There is a cash allocation of 2% in the portfolio.

Country Exposure

Dynamic positioning: Managing positions over the next 12-18 months

The US economy has so far proven remarkably resilient, and markets are pricing in a 'soft landing' as inflationary pressures continue to ease and unemployment remains low. However, we are seeing several leading economic indicators that suggest caution is warranted. As a result, we believe recessionary risks in the US are elevated; though the risk has reduced gradually as continued migration has allowed inflation to moderate without materially impacting the labour market. The key question now is how long will it take for core inflation to settle closer to the Fed's target? Fears that US monetary policy will remain too restrictive for too long have softened due to the recent decline in core inflation, however until we see core inflation reach the Fed's target, markets may remain volatile.

We retain the same themes as recent months, i.e. a preference for less expensive equity markets versus US equities and peer-relative overweights to global small caps and the value factor.

Asset Allocation

Main portfolio highlights

The direct Australian equity portfolio outperformed its benchmark, benefiting in part from an overweight to financials; the sector outperforming the broader market over the period. Stock selection amongst financials also added value, including an overweight to Bendigo and Adelaide Bank and an underweight to Insurance Australia Group. Stock selection within the real estate space added further value; notably an overweight to industrial property giant Goodman Group. In contrast, stock selection amongst materials detracted from overall returns. This included an overweight to James Hardie Industries, which fell after the company announced softer-than-expected forward earnings guidance.

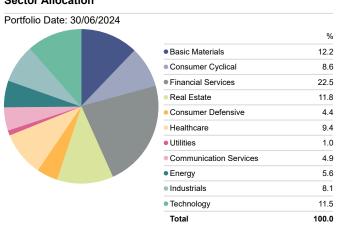

In terms of global equity managers, Japan equity specialist Nissay Asset Management underperformed its benchmark, driven in part by overweights to pharmaceutical company Nippon Shinyaku Co. and video game maker Square Enix. Emerging markets specialists Oaktree Capital and Redwheel (formerly RWC Partners) also underperformed; the latter impacted by its holdings in South Korea's Samsung Electronics and Brazilian oil major Petróleo Brasileiro S.A. In contrast, Numeric's core strategy outperformed over the period, benefiting from overweights to US chip makers Qualcomm and NVIDIA. Value manager Sanders Capital and Joh Berenberg, Gossler & Co. KG also performed well.

With regard to Australian equity managers, the Russell Investments Australian Opportunities Fund (RAOF) underperformed the benchmark. Within RAOF, both Firetrail and L1 Capital underperformed; the latter impacted in part by overweights to chemicals company Nufarm and BlueScope Steel. In contrast, Platypus outperformed over the period; the manager benefiting from overweights to gaming machine maker Aristocrat Leisure and accounting software company Xero.

There were no material positional changes in May.

Overall, the managed portfolio is aligned with its long-term asset allocation as we wait patiently for opportunities.
