Portfolio objective

The portfolio aims to provide capital growth over the long term, consistent with a portfolio focusing solely on growth-oriented assets, while accepting fluctuations in capital values in the medium term. The portfolio aims to perform in line with the benchmark over the long term, after fees.

Main portfolio highlights

Both our global equities exposure and the direct Australian equity portfolio delivered positive returns for the quarter. Emerging markets were also stronger, outperforming their developed counterparts over the period. Meanwhile, both global and Australian listed property fell against a backdrop of higher government bond yields.

The direct Australian equity portfolio outperformed its benchmark, benefiting in part from an overweight exposure and positive stock selection within financials. This included an overweight to Bendigo and Adelaide Bank and an underweight to QBE Insurance. An underweight to the poor-performing real estate space also added value; though the portfolio did benefit from an overweight to industrial property giant Goodman Group. Stock selection within the healthcare sector added further value over the period; notably an overweight to New Zealand's Fisher & Paykel Healthcare, which climbed almost 20% for the quarter. In contrast, stock selection within the energy space detracted from overall performance. This included an overweight to Ampol and a nil exposure to Whitehaven Coal, which rose on the back of higher coal prices.

More broadly, global share markets made only modest gains in the June quarter. Much of the gains continued to be driven by central bank activity. In the US, the Federal Reserve (Fed) left its benchmark fed funds rate on hold at a target range of between 5.25% and 5.50% throughout the period. Speaking after the Bank's June gathering, Chairman Jerome Powell said that while inflation has eased considerably from its peak, it nonetheless remains too high, and that policymakers do not yet have the confidence to begin lowering interest rates. However, he did reaffirm his belief that current monetary policy is sufficiently restrictive to achieve the Bank's inflation goal. Encouragingly, the latest inflation figures showed an easing in consumer prices between April and May. At the time of writing, the market was fully priced for a first Fed rate cut in November. Elsewhere, the European Central Bank cut interest rates in June; the Bank lowering its main refinancing rate by 0.25% (to 4.25%). However, the Bank gave no indication of the timing of its next move. Meantime, both the Bank of England and the Bank of Japan left their respective benchmark policy rates unchanged over the period. Australian shares underperformed their global counterparts; the local market falling on expectations domestic interest rates will remain higher for longer amid stubbornly high inflation.

There were no material positional changes over the period.

[^]This performance is net of management fees for both the Managed Portfolio and the underlying managers' fees and costs. It does not take into account any third party platform fees charged to individual investors or transaction costs (including buy/sell spreads and brokerage fees). It assumes income is reinvested without any tax deduction. It is for RIML's preferred model portfolio of holdings. A holding in the preferred model portfolio may be restricted or replaced with another similar asset in the Managed Portfolio on different platforms if the preferred holding is not available. Different platforms may also charge different management fees for the Managed Portfolio. This can result in variances in performance of the Managed Portfolio between platforms. An individual investor's performance will differ, according to the investor's actual exposures to Managed Portfolio holdings and other factors (including transaction timing, transaction costs, actual underlying manager fees and costs and whether income is paid in cash). Platforms will have their own methodology for calculating performance, at both a platform level and an individual investor level. Past performance is not a reliable indicator of future performance.

Long-term investing: Positioning for 5 years and beyond

The portfolio has a long-term asset allocation of 98% to growth assets. Growth asset valuations have increased year to date but are below pre-pandemic levels. Long-term, forward-looking return expectations for US shares and high-yield debt have moderated. The economic outlook creates uncertainty in the near term, however in the long term, growth assets are still preferred due to superior returns relative to defensive assets.

Defensive assets such as fixed income and cash have an allocation of 2% in the portfolio.

Strategically, the portfolio has positions in cheaper and higher momentum securities per our researched beliefs.
